

Respectfully I ask that no change be made that reduces the diversity of voices in our American Press.

Already large and often foreign investors control public debate and shape the information that we in a free and open society must have to participate fully. To allow a concentration of these voices is to put at risk the values we hold dear. Thank you. Mark J. Schrammel